

Dendy Engelman, MD, FACMS, FAAD, is a board-certified and nationally-acclaimed dermatologic surgeon. She is also a fellow of the American Academy of Dermatology, American Society of Dermatologic Surgery and American College of Mohs Surgery.

Dr. Engelman's educational background includes a double major in psychology and French from Wofford College in South Carolina, where she was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa and graduated summa cum laude with honors. As a medical student at the Medical University of South Carolina, she earned the Presidential Scholar award and the Humanism in Medicine Scholarship for her efforts in establishing and running free medical care clinics in Charleston and in Haiti.

In recognition of her achievements, Dr. Engelman recently served as the Director of Dermatologic Surgery at New York Medical College, where she trained future Mohs surgeons and dermatologists.

In addition, she regularly publishes scientific papers detailing her ongoing advancements and has presented at international and national conventions such as the ASDS, ASLMS, ADC, DASIL, and 5CC.