

Dr. Joely Kaufman is a board certified dermatologist in Coral Gables, Florida. She served as full time faculty at the University's department of dermatology and cutaneous surgery for 7 years, where she is still active as a voluntary clinical Associate Professor, teaching residents and fellows injection and laser techniques. Dr. Kaufman is currently the Director of Skin Associates of South Florida. She is heavily involved in clinical research at the Skin Research Institute and is a Principal investigator on several clinical trials in dermatology. Dr. Kaufman has authored and contributed to numerous peer reviewed publications on aesthetic technologies and techniques and serves as a consultant to companies developing new additions to the market. She lectures nationally and internationally on aesthetic procedures in dermatology including toxins, fillers and lasers.