

Susan C. Taylor, MD, a Harvard, Columbia and University of Pennsylvania educated physician as well as a diplomat of the American Board of Internal Medicine and the American Board of Dermatology has been at the forefront of scientific research, clinical care and education for the Dermatologic health of underserved populations.

An Associate Professor of Dermatology, Perelman School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Taylor was the Founding Director of the Skin of Color Center at St. Luke's Hospital Center in New York, a first of its kind in the nation. Dr. Taylor has delivered over 250 lectures by invitation across Asia, Africa, Latin America, Europe, the Middle East and the United States. Additionally, she has been a medical contributor and expert for national and local television and radio programming including the Today Show, Good Morning America and MSNBC. She co-authored two major dermatology textbooks, Dermatology for Skin of Color (McGraw Hill) and Treatment for Skin of Color (Elsevier), two books for the lay-public, number textbook chapters, journal articles and websites