

Dr. Anna Aronovich is a certified dermatologist with a special interest in the field of immunology. She obtained her medical degree from the School of Medicine at Tel Aviv University and holds a PhD from the Weizmann Institute of Science. Currently, she serves as a senior physician in the Dermatology and Venereal Diseases Department at the Rabin Medical Center, where she specializes in the treatment of fibrotic skin diseases such as morphea, scleroderma, LSA, and cutaneous GvHD. Dr. Aronovich also has expertise in aesthetic medicine and incorporates her knowledge of basic science with clinical experience to provide comprehensive care for her patients.