

Dr. Jacqueline Watchmaker is a Board-Certified Dermatologist who practices medical, procedural and cosmetic dermatology. She currently practices at the Center for Aesthetic and Laser Medicine, Scottsdale. Dr. Watchmaker is originally from Wisconsin and earned her medical degree from Medical College of Wisconsin. In medical school she was elected to the prestigious Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Society. She then completed dermatology residency at Boston University in Massachusetts where she served as chief resident during her final year.

Following residency Dr. Watchmaker was accepted to a Laser and Cosmetic Dermatology fellowship at Skincare Physicians in Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts. In fellowship she developed expertise in the use of injectable fillers, neuromodulators, lasers and other energy-based devices.

Dr. Watchmaker has written multiple book chapters and published many research papers in peer-reviewed medical journals. Dr. Watchmaker has presented at many national and international meetings and is often quoted in the media.